UNA-USA is a Program of the UN Foundation.

December 15, 2014

Dear UNA Friends and Colleagues,

Congratulations to Gabriel Levitt, Brooklyn Chapter President and winner of the Margaret K. (Molly) Bruce Advocacy Award, and to Marcia Brewster, Westchester Chapter President and Donna Rosa, Northern New Jersey Chapter President, winners of the Lee H. Bloom Leadership Award. See photos below. The awards were made at our Annual Meeting on December 8 by Anne Bruce, Molly's daughter, and Doug Bloom, Lee's son.

Congratulations also to all the chapters and chapter leaders, including Division's Young Professionals, who have worked tirelessly for strong programming and educating the public about the United Nations.

At the meeting we approved a Statement entitled "American Criminal Justice System Needs More Than Body Cameras," in relation to human rights and the work the Division did earlier this year on Race and the American Criminal Justice System, which was submitted to the UN Committee to End All Forms of Racial Discrimination. Please feel free to send it to your mailing lists and the press. Let us know if this is published or if you receive feedback.

Please see a Save the Date for our 7th Annual Mid-Atlantic Conference at the UN/ UNA Members Day at the UN on February 20th.

We will soon announce details of our Video Contest for Middle School and High School students. Look for the announcement!

Be sure to keep up to date with ongoing action items and news on the www.unausa.org website. Today these include peacekeeping, the ebola crisis, funding for UNA-USA, voicing your priorities on the MyWorld website, and a new app you can download to keep track of Model UN.

Warm wishes for the holidays!

STATEMENT OF THE BOARD
"AMERICAN CRIMINAL JUSTICE SYSTEM NEEDS MORE THAN BODY CAMERAS"

The deaths of Eric Garner and Michael Brown and the decisions by the related grand juries highlight again exchanges this summer between the U.S. Government and the reviewing committee of the United Nations on racial discrimination. The U.S. Government presented a report to the United Nations in August on its implementation of the International Convention for the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination. Despite progress, the reviewing committee asserted[1] and the U.S agreed[2] there are "stark racial disparities in the administration and functioning of the criminal justice system, including the disproportionate number of persons belonging to racial, ethnic and national minorities in the prison population."

The UNA Southern NYS Division[i] and over 90 other organizations submitted related reports. Our report, "Race and the American Criminal Justice System," was based on a seminar with several co-sponsors; it highlights important problems and gives possible solutions. Racism is endemic to the American criminal justice system in many ways, and must be addressed aggressively and with urgency. Simple solutions will not suffice. Needed steps go well beyond body cameras and in-service training for police, and must address broader issues including adequate resources for public education, health and housing, stemming gun violence and increasing employment prospects. Police residence in and reflection of the communities they serve, community-police partnerships, and recruitment of ethnic minorities and women into police departments are all vital ingredients for long-term success.

Important to highlight: (1) In New York State (and elsewhere) officials use elementary school test results to help predict future needs for prison cells; (2) The state's inmate population is three-quarters African-American and Hispanic; (3) The state's recidivism rate is currently 40 percent; (4) Gov. Cuomo estimated college courses in prison to cost about US$5,000 a year versus $60,000 a year to house each prisoner; (5) Programs that focus on education for prisoners sharply reduce likelihood of repeat criminality; and (6) Support for reintegration and employment is similarly important.

For African-American and Hispanic youth especially, it can be terribly important not to become entangled in a system that currently is less "protect and serve" and more "contain and control." In an effort to help, the New York Chapter of Blacks in Law Enforcement of America has published a pamphlet entitled "How do you survive police confrontation?"

We pledge to do our part in the following ways:

- Wide circulation of this statement to the media, public officials and other organizations and individuals;
- Provision of our shadow report to those desiring copies;
- Sharing the report of the December 10, 2014, Human Rights Day event by the UNA Mid-Hudson Valley Chapter, on the subject "Bringing human rights home: inequality, race and the United States," held at the FDR Presidential Library in Hyde Park, NY.

- Convening, in early 2015, by the UNA Southern NY Young Professionals, a seminar to explore racism, police brutality, and UN oversight in America -- with a specific emphasis upon recent events;
- Presentation, in February 2015, of our work and that of UNA-USA on the UN Universal Periodic Review of human rights and our Division's shadow report on racial discrimination and the American criminal justice system, at the UNA-USA Mid-Atlantic Conference and National Members Day that is to be held at the United Nations.

Much has yet to be done, at all levels of government, by civic organizations and by individuals to ensure justice and embody the founding principles of the U.S. and the UN.
